

To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing to ask that the FCC reject petition 04-160 by the NAB. Why am I even having to write and ask that this petition be rejected? Haven't we already been through the same nonsense between the cable television and satellite television industries? Was it not decided to allow satellite television broadcasters to deliver local network content? Why then am I having to write the FCC to reject a petition by the NAB designed to stifle competition from satellite radio broadcasters, which is no different from what was attempted by the cable television industry against the satellite television industry? Please, quash this outrageous attempt by the NAB to use the power of government to avoid competition in the marketplace! Have we not learned that competition invariably benefits consumers?
